LIGHTNING BURNED THREE BIG BARN

Early Spring Electrical Storm Proved Destructive—Barns Near Newtown, Near Frankford and at Eagleview Fired by Bolts—Destruction Elsewhere.

The electrical storm that swept over and deluged Hatboro and vicinity last Tuesday night, was quite destructive elsewhere.

In parts of Philadelphia and Camden houses were unroofed and damaged to the extent of thousands of dollars. Lightning struck the one-and-a-half-story frame barn on the farm of Warner Walton, Bristol, pike and Blakesboro road, during the storm and the structure burned, causing a loss of about $2500. Cattle and horses in the barn were saved, but a quantity of agricultural implements were destroyed.

During the storm lightning struck the barn of Mrs. Elizabeth Grossman, at Eagleview, and it was destroyed. The live stock was saved. Loss $5,000, partly insured.

In the early moments of the storm, about 7 o'clock, a bolt of lightning struck and fired the barn on the farm of Comly Wilson, in Newtown township, a short distance north of Newtown. The fire was instantly discovered and the men about the premises and neighbors were enabled to save the twenty-five head of live stock, some machinery and considerable hay and other crops.

The barn, which has a fine large structure, extensive hay barracks and other smaller buildings were entirely consumed. The loss, which is heavy, is partly covered by an insurance in the Line Lexington Mutual Fire Insurance Company.

BUCKS PAYS $5000 TO FREE TOLL ROADS

Condemned Turnpikes Taken Over by County—Humbleville Company Sells for $1600 and Byberry and Bensalem for $3400—Both in Bad Condition.

Last Monday the Bucks County Commissioners agreed to pay $5000 damages for two worn out turnpikes, recently freed by Juries. The roads are in poor condition and the county must immediately make repairs.

Suits have been in progress, and a settlement was made with the Humbleville turnpike company for $1600.

In the case of the Byberry and Bensalem turnpike, the company officers and the County Commissioners, after a long parley, agreed that the county should pay $3400.

Commissioner Davis, after the transaction was completed, said that looking after the condition of the pike now rested with him. There are large holes in several sections of the roadbed, which the county will have to repair. Up to the time the transfer of the pike is made, the receipts from tolls will revert to the county. The greatest difficulty in making a smooth transfer is the transfer of a tollhouse to the county, but that matter was amicably settled and the county will own the building.

If any of the ladies or friends of the Union care to make any donation, however small, toward this special object, the superintendent, Miss Elizabeth Hays, of Abington, would be very glad to hear from them, or will give any information.

At the conclusion of the business part of the program, a very enjoyable and instructive feature was introduced in the form of a talk by Mrs. James Williams, on the work that is being done by the various church denominations and other organizations including the W. C. T. U., among the immigrant class in this country. At all the great cities, missions are maintained for the educating and well-being of the foreigner.

CHURCH OBJECTS TO QUARRY WORK

Declaring that explosions of dynamite and powder used in blasting by a rock-quarrying company near Edge Hill, are terrorizing the people of the neighborhood and jarring and disturbing the walls of buildings, officials of the Carmel Presbyterian church, of that place, have instituted legal proceedings to prevent a further continuance of the alleged dangerous conditions.

The quarry over which the legal trouble has developed is located just south of Edge Hill village and is conducted by the Edge Hill Silica Rock Company. It is possibly 100 yards from the manse of Carmel church.

The quarry work is continually employed in the quarries, the product of which is used in the making of fire bricks. William M. Conroy, superintendent of the Baxter Lighting Company, has completed installing gas at Hatboro station.

The Ladies Guild of the M. E. church was entertained at the home of Mrs. T. E. Paxon on Wednesday afternoon.

The Social Union, of the Baptist church, will be entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Raab, on Jacksonville road, on Monday evening next, April 8th.

A series of union meetings preparatory to Easter, have been held in the Methodist and Baptist churches during the past week. This Friday night Mr. Wallace will speak at the meeting in the M. E. church.

Charles N. Barlett has moved from near Terwood to Wilmer Wood's house, on Moreland avenue, vacated by Walter Rothwell. Mr. Barlett has also rented storage room for oils and greases from E. J. Milnor.

The Religion Forward Movement meeting held in Wilson's hall on last Sunday afternoon was well attended, and addresses were made by Messrs. Wallace and Hoover. Both gentlemen are active workers in the cause and their talks were very interesting.

Large congregations greeted the newly appointed pastor of the M. E. church, Rev. A. J. Ambler, on last Sunday. Mr. Ambler is a brilliant pulpit orator and has the closest attention of his hearers, who greatly enjoyed the excellent sermons.

John Keen and wife moved from the house over Mason's garage to Charles Lefferts' house on Moreland avenue, which was vacated by George Sheppard, who moved to the house on York road vacated by Squire Hockman and family, who removed to his new house, just completed.

The Kerbaugh family have moved from Warren Cornell's house, on York road, to the house belonging to Andrew Lentz, on Montgomery avenue. They expect to move later to their house which they have purchased on Depot street. Mr. Cornell will occupy his house, which adjoins his office.

Walter Rothwell, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, was moved on Saturday to the home of his parents adjoining his drug store. On Monday the Rothwell furniture was moved into their new house adjoining their former residence on Moreland avenue. The new house is approaching completion.

J. N. Watson will hold an entire clearing-out sale of household goods, wagons and horses for Dr. William Hannum, on York street, this borough on Saturday, April 27th. Dr. Hannum, who came here several years ago, succeeding Dr. P. H. Markley, and who has built up a considerable practice, is reported to have sold the same to a Dr. W. J. Smith, of Philadelphia, who will take charge shortly.

J. N. Watson's sale of furniture on Saturday last drew a large crowd of bidders and buyers. The advertisement in the Public Spirit stating that many antiques would be offered attracted people from long distances away, and the old furniture sold at high prices. Three chairs brought over $100.

The advantages of good roads are many, even to the point of fire protection. On Sunday night when a phone message was received by the Hatboro fire company that the residence of James M. Cornell, of Ivyland, was on fire and assistance was needed, our boys quickly responded and made fast time until they struck the soft mud roads, in Warrimater township, when the big automobile with its heavy fire fighting apparatus sunk in the mire and was stalled. It never reached the fire and several horses were required to pull it out of the mud. The automobile engine has had a self starting apparatus placed on it this week.

NORRISTOWN 100 YEARS OLD.

The borough of Norristown is incorporated on March 21, 1812. It began business on May 1, 1812. From a population of less than 500 it has grown to over 25,000. Early in May a week will be taken to celebrate the centennial.

THE RECORD FOR MARKETS.

The Philadelphia Record is the acknowledged authority for market prices. Merchants in Philadelphia base their prices of eggs, poultry, butter, grain, and country produce generally, upon the figures quoted in the Record, and if shipping goods to Philadelphia either directly or through an agent it is important for the farmers of this vicinity to know every day what the Record quotes. They can always get the Record prices for their goods, and in some cases can make contracts on a premium basis if their goods are exceptionally well graded and show high quality. They will find that the Record will help them in the disposal of their products, and that they will get the full market value for them if they base their prices upon its quotations.

KICK ON HIGH MILK FREIGHT

Milkmen Say Reading Has Boosted Prices Several Times.

The Philadelphia Milk Exchange has decided to file a protest with the State Railroad Commission against the Philadelphia and Reading Railway because of the company's announcement that an advance of 20 per cent. in milk freight rates will be inaugurated April 15. The protest has been placed in the hands of the Legislative Committee.

The railroad's increase in rates is due to the company's decision to put on refrigerator cars in order to comply with the provisions of the Health Board's rules. Members of the exchange declared that the freight rate increase simply meant that the shipper would have to bear the expense of the modern methods of transportation.

When the case is argued before the commission an effort will be made by the exchange to open the whole milk rate question. Milk dealers declare that the action of the Philadelphia and Reading Railway Company is unwarranted, because the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has just given notice of a decrease in the milk freight rate of 3 cents a can. The Reading's order will increase the rate from 20 to 24 cents a can.

The Interstate Milk Producers' Association, an organization representing the farmers of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, who ship milk to the Philadelphia market, have sent their aid. The exchange members realize that the farmers will not submit to any additional charge and the Reading's proposed new rate will devolve entirely upon the shoulders of the retailers.

An officer of the exchange declared that the railroad, by announcement of a 20 per cent. increase now, proposes to make a total increase of 38 per cent. within five years. He said that in 1907, when the rate was 18 per cent. from long to short measurement in the fixing of rates for the shipment of milk, the Reading Company boosted its rate 18 per cent.

Regarding the charges of discrimination it is said the Reading Company, which handles the milk of the shipshippers from the country surrounding Philadelphia, has its schedule of rates drawn up in such manner that there is a great disparagement between different points; that while it is possible to bring milk here from a considerable distance at a fair price, it is necessary to pay more in other cases for bringing it but a few miles.

PUPILS HURT BY LIGHTNING.

Stroke Passed Down School Chimney and Caused Alarm.

During the severe storm on Friday lightning struck and ran down the chimney of the Warrimater school house, injured several of the children and damaged some of the furniture.

It was about 2:30 during the severe wind, rain and hail storm that the lightning struck. The stove seemed to crack like a revolver, and in a flash several pupils were knocked down. Henry Garges, aged 12 years, son of Edward Garges, had the great toe of one of his feet split open and the foot was still black the following morning. Madeline Abbott, daughter of Harry Abbott, was also knocked down. The shoe was off young Garges' foot after he brought his head down, the children, however, were seriously hurt.

County Controller Jacobs, of Montgomery county, notified Poor Directors that physicians will be required to bid for the contract to furnish medical aid for the poor.

PRESENTED WITH AUTO.

Perhaps the most surprised man in this locality was Ellwood Danewhor, who resides on Welsh road and Fairfield avenue, on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Danewhor, who is a contract painter in Philadelphia, with a large force of workmen was invited to take a ride in an automobile by several of the large builders for whom he does a great deal of work.

As he knew that the gentlemen who had invited him owned automobiles, he thought nothing more of the invitation and rode out with them to Willow Grove, as they said they were looking up some property in that locality. The driver of the car was instructed to take Mr. Danewhor home and on their arrival was told by one of the gentlemen in the car to put the automobile in Mr. Danewhor's barn. Then a letter was handed to Mr. Danewhor, setting forth that the three or four gentlemen had made him a present of this new and beautiful car, which was a Model 29 Buick, equipped with top, glass front, speedometer, clock and horn, and a car capable of doing on close examination, the initials were found on the door.

To say that Danewhor was astonished is putting it mildly. He could not realize but that there must be some joke about it. The value of the gift was about $1400.

Mr. Danewhor had been considering the purchase of an automobile, but had not decided on any particular one and in fact had not decided positively whether he would purchase a car.

A. W. Beck moved this week from the Willow Grove estate place on the Doylestown road, to the new home on Welsh road, near Bethayres.

At the monthly meeting of the Willow Grove Building Association on Thursday evening, an Albrecht terrace, belonging to Mrs. E. M. Stanley, 614 Union avenue, Noble, staggered into the yard and dropped dead. Its actions prior to its death left no doubt that it had been poisoned.

About the same time a dog belonging to J. R. Leach, Jr., living across the street from the Stanley home, died in a similar manner. Friday the police were given one of the threatening post cards and asked to begin an investigation.

Mrs. Smiley arrived by the death of her pet and anxious to bring the prisoner to justice, saw Mr. Cortelyou, chief postal inspector at Philadelphia, and asked him to do all in his power to bring about the arrest of the writer of the post cards.

Congratulations are in order on the arrival of a bouncing baby boy at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Geisler, on Osceola avenue.

The community learned with surprise of the marriage of Elsie Lang and Miss Margaret Boyle, daughter of John Boyle, Ogden avenue. We wish them success in their matrimonial venture.

A large force of men have been at work reconstructing the bridge on east Forest avenue. They are constructing it on lines which will insure a permanent structure to resist such floods as we have recently witnessed.

Patrick Harkins went to the Jewish hospital for treatment on Monday, he was operated on on Tuesday for an affection of the glands. He has thus far stood the operation well, and expects in a short time to be entirely free from the discomfort occasioned by his condition.

The meeting on the proposed loan on Saturday evening last, while not productive of great discussion of the pros and cons, had the effect of bringing the people together, showing the interest of our citizens in the benefits which will be derived from a wide distribution of the loan. It is the opportunity of a lifetime to vote for this loan and our village will practically be the beneficiary.

Love makes the world go round, but it takes something less ephemeral to push it along.

POINTS TO REMEMBER IN BUYING A HORSE

Signs of Unsoundness—Shape and Style—Good Signs—Advice to Farmers.

Paper by E. E. Terry, Read at Farmers' Institute at Bustleton.

In discussing this subject, the idea is not to say just what horses should or should not be selected, as different buyers have different and individual (and rightly too) of the type of horse best adapted to their needs. And I am personally acquainted with men who in buying horses, invariably choose the type known as low down chunks, while others select the longer legged, more rangy type as being best suited for them. But a few points that to some may not be new, for they have, from time to time been printed and reprinted, is what I will endeavor to make as clear as possible to you.

For while two of the most prominent horse types are wintering in Atlanta at the Government's expense, there are still a few left, and the most straight forward dealer does not feel it incumbent upon him to instruct his customer in points of excellence. And, although he is always willing to say which of several horses is best suited to his customer's needs, the information is a luxury when coming from an interested source.

It is far better for the customer to know a few points to the stable, the kind of horse he needs.

And in trying to impart this information, I shall use plain terms, so that anyone, whether horseman or not, can clearly understand. For horsemanship is not so abstruse a thing as to require a language of its own. Still it is no more than fair for me to say that the terms used, are of course, relative, therefore, some study is necessary to get their full meaning. The first things to consider in the horse that you are desiring, are the size and type you require are its feet and legs. Because if perfect in other respects if anything, a horse with small feet and legs or legs he would be of little value. His feet should be symmetrical in shape and round, and the flat foot is a crookedness on and road, and the two defects however, the flat foot is the worst.

The limb should be clean, that is, free from blemishes, and they should have plenty of bone and substance. The forelegs should be long from the hock joint to the knee, and short from the knee to the fetlock joint.

It is well to remember that this point is an exceedingly important one in a road horse. The hind legs should be both clean and flat, a round leg is always to be avoided, and it cannot be too clean. If it looks as if the skin had been removed, the bone is exposed, and then put back again so much the better. But limbs as clean as this are only found on rich blooded horses, and are not to be expected on the more lymphatic drafter. The rambler or hock joint should be strong and well developed, and it is better that it be relatively near the ground, though this is not so important as in the case of the fore knee.

Unsoundness of the limbs, such as spavins, ringbones, and the like, are not so much to be feared in buying young, green horses, but should always be looked for. They are easily described but it would be well to study them further by examining some horse that is known to have them.

though all are bad enough, is a bony enlargement, encircling the region between the foot and fetlock joint. Splints are bony enlargements, between the knee and fetlock joint, usually on the inside. They rarely do much harm unless unduly large, or located too near the knee. The horse should stand squarely on his legs, his feet should be well under him, not sprawled apart, and his hoofs should stand straight fore and aft, neither foaling in or out. We now come to the body. The back should be short. The hind quarters should be well developed with the hip joints fairly well forward and smooth. The hind quarters are most elegant when the line from the top of the hips to the root of the tail is only moderately oblique, neither too straight, nor too drooping. The straightness, or obliqueness of this line does not seem to affect the horse's usefulness very much, but the degree I have mentioned is one of the points of equine perfection, and as such, should receive consideration whenever possible. The body should be nicely rounded and well ribbed up, that is, the space between the ribs and hip bone should be short. Horses that are deficient in this respect are hard keepers, and as a rule, less satisfactory generally, than those that are more compactly built. The shoulders should be slanting, this conformation makes a shoulder that is both strong and elegant. An upright shoulder is a bad thing and always to be avoided. The chest should be deep so as to give ample lung capacity. Horses with bodies such as outlined are usually horses of better constitutions. The neck so far as its utility goes may be either short or long, but the latter is more elegant. It should not be fleshy or beefy, and at a point, a little back of where it joins the head it should be bent a little.

This conformation leaves the windpipe curved instead of bent at an angle, and so gives the breathing apparatus freer play. The head on high bred horses is rather small, and very clean and bony. The cleaner the head the better on horses of all kinds. In shape when viewed from the front it should slant in a little from the eyes to the top. When viewed from the side, the face line that is straight, and not aquiline is to be preferred. The eyes should be from medium to large in size, not too near the top of the head, and set well apart from each other. The ears should be fine, pointed, and of medium length. When pointing forward they should be parallel, not slanting apart. All these rules are simple and easily remembered, but before anyone attempts to apply them to a living subject, in the technical selection of a horse, he should compare them with a live horse and fully grasp their meaning. For without such practical illustration they cannot be absorbed thoroughly enough.

The buyer, for instance, notwithstanding the simplicity of the terms, might have little idea of the real difference between an upright and a slanting shoulder, or even between a long and a short back. But if with the rules in his mind, he examines several different horses, all of which will be certain to differ more or less in these respects, the actual meaning of the terms becomes clear, and the difference is seen at a glance. With these rules thoroughly learned, even an inexperienced buyer ought to be able to select good horses.

His first difficulty will lie in the fact that there are but few perfect horses, and that horses possessing some very good points, may be more or less deficient in some others. A little study, however, will soon enable him to decide what shortcomings to take chances on, and to select horses that "average up" well, remembering always that the feet and legs are the first thing to examine.

He will learn too that the standard applies to horses of all kinds. Horses are of so many types, ranging from the clean-cut nervous thoroughbred, to the heavy and slow moving dray horse, that it may seem at first as if this could not be. But the difference in judging horses of different types, is in the application of the standard, not in the standard itself. Take for instance, any good horse of draft breeding, and compare him with a thoroughbred. No two horses could be more unlike in general appearance, and yet if examined critically, both will be found to have short backs, slanting shoulders, good hind quarters and clean limbs, and head. Of course there is a difference throughout. The skin of the draft horse cannot be so fine, or his limbs so clean as those of the thoroughbred, for he is a much less finely formed, and delicately organized animal; but he may have the points as good as a degree as his kind will permit.

If any further proof is needed that only one standard can be successfully applied, we have only to reflect that the primitive horse, as formed by nature, and from which all our different breeds have sprung, was undoubtedly in his best form, endowed with the points we have named, and that he was rather fine, than coarse in type. Not in all probability as fine as the thoroughbred, but approaching more nearly to that type, than to that of our heavy draft horses. The modifications of this original type have been caused partly by environment, and partly by the art of man. But in all these different modifications, which we call breeds, there has never been the slightest structural difference. And as in breeds every part of the horse bears the same relation to every other part, what is a good point in one, is a good point in another.

In the matter of size, horses from one thousand to eleven hundred and fifty pounds in weight, are best for road service, and from twelve hundred to thirteen hundred and fifty pounds for the farm.

Larger horses are, of course, stronger and can pull heavier loads, but they are usually less active and enduring, and are more subject to injury and illness. As a rule, all the tissues of the body in a very large horse, are looser and coarser than in a small one. It has also been shown that his bones, bulk for bulk, weigh less, and his feet are of a coarser and weaker texture. Indeed, with a lifelong experience with horses of all kinds, I have never once known of a very large horse whose feet were as good as those of the average of smaller ones. For city work larger horses are often deemed necessary, but we are discussing here what is best on a farm.

The new horses that are offered in the sale stables are often excessively fat. This fat is of no advantage and the buyer pays high for it; but it is the fashion to fatten horses for market, and there is no help for it. Often considerable money can be saved by buying young and sound second-hand horses that are thin in flesh. But such bargains do not usually fall to the lot of the novice in horse trading, and he will find it easier, and in the long run cheaper, to go to some reputable stable and buy new horses.

As for the disposition and character of the horse, they should be demonstrated by actual proof before he is bought. It should be shown that he is broken to both single and double harness. That he is not afraid of automobiles, electric or steam cars, and that his feet and ears in fact, all parts of him can be handled with safety.

For his disposition is of no less importance than his good points and soundness. Sooner or later there is certain to come a time, when it will be necessary to trust him with some one who knows very little about horses, and in such a case, it is only his natural inclination to docility and obedience that makes him safe.

Kront, of Glenside, of a large collection of mosses and liverworts from many parts of the world. Dr. Kront is a member of the Botanical Society and an expert on mosses. His collection contains a large and representative set of patinas or liverworts natives of the Philadelphia area. There are more than 500 sheets of specimens.

S. H. Mortimer moved the latter part of last week to Germantown. They moved by auto van from the Haver property on Glenside avenue below New street.

The Campbell property on Wharton avenue near Wedon avenue has been rented to Charles Pierson of Cheltenham, through the agency of Walter H. Wilson.

The rain storm on Tuesday evening was quite severe through this section and for awhile the trolleys were blocked at Mt. Carmel avenue and Keswick avenue.

Walter H. Wilson has rented a bungalow for John S. Graver to John Wagner. The bungalow is on the corner of Ritchey and Tuxton avenues. Mr. Wagner has taken possession of the same.

The meeting of Carmel circle of King's Daughters on Tuesday afternoon had about fifty in attendance. The address by Mrs. Derby, the State Secretary, was very much appreciated and enjoyed. Luncheon was served to the members and visitors.

On Sunday afternoon while looking through a house in Dimsent a woman not known in this section, was unfortunately enough to step on a lat and plaster ceiling and fell from the third floor to the first floor. It is reported that she sustained a broken ankle, as well as several cuts and bruises.

Although some of our people may not have been fooled by anybody on Monday yet the weather man sprung a surprise on us on Wednesday morning with a big drop in the temperature. Overcasts were again in season and Easter dinner preparations laid to one side in doubt.

The new toll gate erected at the corner of Willow Grove pike and Waverly road, has caused a good deal of protest, especially from this property owners in that section. Two toll gates within two squares of each other comes pretty near being a record, and yet we understand that the new gate collected very little toll.

Quite a number of our local ball fans attended the game on Saturday between the Phillies and Athletics in Philadelphia. It is expected that Glenside will be represented by a ball team this season and the management is getting a line on who will compose the team for the season. A good local team is what the town will look for and support.

Declaring that explosions of dynamite and powder used in blasting by the Silica Rock Company, of Edge Hill are terrorizing the people of the neighborhood and jarring and disturbing the walls of the buildings, officials of Carmel Presbyterian church, of Edge Hill, have instituted equity proceedings in the Montgomery County Courts to prevent continuance of the alleged dangerous practice. It is also claimed that stones and other things are thrown on the church property.

Saturday evening, April 13th, that well known and popular comedy, "A Family Affair" is to be reproduced in the parish building of St. Peter's church at Wedon. Among those in the cast of characters who play the well known young folks: Miss Ruth N. Pueller, Miss Helen Stilt, Miss Edith Towill, J. Carroll Johnston, William Hyndman, Jr., J. Ernest Nachod, Thores Thomsen. There will be musical and literary selections beside.

Carmel basketball teams, first and second, went to Germantown last Saturday evening. The first team defeated the Covenant team by the score of 16 to 12. The second team was defeated by the score of 17 to 16. The game was very small and the players took up all the space there was and had little room to move about. The game was played under difficulties, and hence the reason of the low score. This Saturday evening the Nicetown boys will play the Carmel first and second teams in Carmel cage which should mean a close game as Carmel defeated this team by only two points in their last game.

Glenside Fire Company held their annual meeting on Friday evening, March 29th. At which time the following officers were elected to serve for the year: President, Frank M. Ranney; vice president, William A. Lewis; secretary, E. S. Donough; treasurer, S. C. Stout; trustees, H. C. Brooke and Harry Refanalyzer; H. C. Howard Foster, first assistant, Fred Penke; second assistant, E. Whitman, and third assistant, Fred Schone. A committee will be appointed to solicit funds towards the purchase of an auto apparatus, and to which committee you should respond liberally. The Edge Hill auto service has been the means of reducing the rates in this section and what you subscribe to the fund will be returned in reduced rates later on.

TO REORGANIZE MONTGOMERY COUNTY LEAGUE.

A movement is under way to bring about the reorganization of the Montgomery County baseball league, which had a couple of years successful history. It is planned to have four teams in the league this year: Glenside, Jenkintown, Pt. Washington and Willow Grove. Glenside has been selected from the North Penn League and the fans are anxious that the Montgomery County League be reorganized, and all clubs to be of local talent.

School board of Cheltenham township will enlarge Glenside school house. Architect Wise has drawn plans, upon which bidders are asked to submit.

Note the new card of James E. McCaughey, the new proprietor of the Kline-Walsh store. This old established stand is now in the hands of a hustling young business man, who desires a strong support of his patronage. Give him a trial.

At the Glenside Lutheran church there will be Easter services on Sunday morning, beginning at eleven o'clock, and again in the evening, beginning at eight o'clock. The church is beautifully decorated with flowers. The choir will sing selections appropriate to the season. Southampton orchestra has been engaged by the Harboro Improvement Association to play at Harboro on Friday, April 12th. No doubt, after the sensation these capable musicians have made in the various towns they visited, it will be flooded with engagements.

Mr. and Mrs. Elias Leedom entertained at dinner on Tuesday last week in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison. Covers were laid for the following: Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. William Shelmire, Mr. and Mrs. Elias Leedom, Dr. and Mrs. A. Parkers, Miss Carrie Heston, Messrs. Harry Parker, Paul Parker and Percy Leedom.

Southampton fire company responded to appeals for assistance received from Ivyland folks on Sunday evening. The fire was at A. Cornell's house and when the fire company got there, the bulk of the blaze was extinguished, although several tanks of chemicals were used in putting out the fire.

Scattering fire around the roof, which threatened to break out any moment of a strong breeze. Despite the bad roads all the apparatus arrived at the fire and over 25 men of the company were the scene ready for any kind of work. The trip from the fire house to Cornell's house was made in 21 minutes, which when the bad condition of Jacksonville road is taken into consideration, is remarkably quick time.

Several visitors to Southampton were interested in watching the departure of the fire company and were loud in their praises of the cool manner with which everything was handled.

At a special meeting of the fire company on Tuesday evening, April 2nd, the committee appointed to look up proper site for fire house, handed in their report. The committee favored a lot offered by Mr. Harding, but after general discussion a vote was taken on the matter and a large majority favored the Daneshower lot at the corner of Knowles avenue and Second Street pike. Another committee was appointed to go ahead and make a deposit on this lot and report at next meeting of fire company, which will be held on Friday evening. The Daneshower lot was secured for $450. This money will be on hand shortly as the fund is over fifty and more coming from the show at Fox Chase and Newtown. It is hoped that all the money will interest themselves in this work of getting a fire house and hall, which will be one of the best things done for the town since the formation of fire company.

HARTSVILLE

Engineers of the State Highway Department were working along Old York road this week. These men say the work of re-building that portion of the road comprising the former Hartsville and Centerville turnpike will be done this summer. This section, now an abandoned old road, has been in wretched travelling condition this spring. It will be a great boon to Hartsville if it is put in good order.
